9 RIBARSKA KOLIBA RESTAURANT

Restaurant with a 100 years old tradition! Because of that "Ribarska koliba" is also called "Taste of the sea". After a one century-old dream, a sleeping beauty will wake up, just like in the fairy tale. Maybe it is more appropriate to call her the "old lady" because she was born before 1900. Carpaccio, octopus salad or octopus in Merlot with polenta, Istrian prosciutto & sheep cheese... Enough for your gastronomic imagination?

PULA FILM FESTIVAL

The oldest Croatian film festival which is held annually in a Roman amphitheater since 1954. Apart from film screenings open to the public, the annual Croatian film industry awards are also traditionally held at the festival. The awards presented and given at the festival (called golden arenas), are the main national film awards in the country and they serve as the Croatian equivalent of the American Academy Awards.
when: July 15th – July 22nd
where: Arena Pula

OUTLOOK FESTIVAL

Outlook festival is an electronic music festival held in Croatia. Celebrating 'soundsystem culture', the festival's lineup offers a huge range of styles from and across the bass spectrum. Ten years ago it started with only 600 visitors, now, it counts 250 performers. Still, they never lost their roots and originality.
when: September 07th – September 10th
where: Fort Punta Christo

The most famous sight in Pula – of course – is the Roman amphitheatre, which is called The Arena. Built during the 1st century AD and completed under the reign of emperor Flavius, this Amphitheatre is the sixth largest in the world (of those that still exist). The three-storey structure held 23,000 spectators in Roman times and today hosts numerous concerts and events throughout the year, including the Pula Film Festival screenings.

James Joyce – one of the most influential writers in the modernist Avantgarde of the early 20th century was an English teacher in Pula, just around the early 20th century.

Using a taxi boat, day trips are being organized to visit Brijuni islands. A group of fourteen small islands in the Croatian part of the northern Adriatic sea, which are also a Croatian national park. This is a must see when visiting Pula.

The town hall in Pula is an excellent example of how Classical, Roman, Gothic, Baroque and modern architectural designs can be combined. Each wall describes a piece of Pula's history. During the Roman reign, the Venetian Republic and now the Croatian Republic, the palace has always been at the centre of the city (literally, figuratively and politically).

The Pula Film Festival is not only the premier cinematic event in the international film calendar of Croatia – it is far more than that. Films have been screened in the famous Arena of Pula since the heady days of 1954. In the swinging sixties, stars like Orson Welles, Sophia Loren, Richard Burton, Elizabeth Taylor, Sam Peckinpah, James Coburn, Yul Brinner, Miloš Forman and many others graced the stands of the hallowed amphitheatre in glamorous nights under the stars.

Like Rome, Pula was also built on the seven hills which in the local dialect usually has the prefix „monte“, which can be translated as hill: Monte Zaro, Monte Paradiso, Monte Giro, Monte Grande, Kaštel, Monte Serpente and Kaštahjer.
